

A sweet fictional SHORT STORY packed with little known details and traditions of herdsman's lives. The city experience of Gerlee and the missionaries rings true, too. Tuya loved the wide-open spaces of the Mongolian steppe country, but if Tenger, the sky god, really lived among the clouds, where was he on a clear day when there were no clouds in sight? When her sister, Gerlee, is taken to the city to live with her grandparents, Tuya is filled with rage. What part does the silk scarf play in Gerlee's tragic mishap, and did Tuya provoke the spirits in the fire? Four decades pass and Tuya still does not have answers. Tuya had always wanted the great spirit to talk to her. The American missionary said that the true God would talk to her through the Bible. Had Mongols believed something for generations that was not true? Would the battle that raged within Tuya ever be stilled? "For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead" (Romans 1:20).
